Property Dispute Resolution

Broadmeadows Family Relationship Centre (BFRC) supports parents, children and young people going through the difficult stages of family disputes and breakdown.

In addition to Family Dispute Resolution service (Family Mediation), Broadmeadows FRC facilitates Property Mediation.

Property Mediation is an affordable and effective way to reach agreements on financial settlement for separated or separating couples. Property mediation is a methodical and confidential process which closely follows the general principles of the Court for determining what constitutes a fair and reasonable division of a combined property pool.

Broadmeadows FRC provides the support of interpreters, and staff from Middle Eastern and Turkish backgrounds. The service is available to people in the Hume, Whittlesea, Moreland, and surrounding areas.

Eligibility

In order to initiate mediation, the following requirements must be fulfilled:

- Both parties need to consent to the property mediation process
- You must have the contact details of the person you want to mediate with (personal email or postal address)
- You must not have an open case with Child Protection Services
- Should you have children under the age of 18, it is desirable that you have developed a parenting agreement prior to proceeding with property mediation process.

How to access Broadmeadows Family Relationship Centre

Family Relationship Centres are subsidised by the Commonwealth Government. While the initial assessment session is free, a means-tested co-contribution will be required for ongoing sessions. Concession and Health Care cardholders and students are exempt from paying fees.
